

Independent Advisory Panel (IAP) on Deaths in Custody

Deaths in State Custody Parliamentary Log

This Parliamentary Log provides a summary of all Parliamentary business on issues relating to deaths in state custody since May 2015. The log includes information on Parliamentary Business and Written Ministerial Statements from the UK Parliament and devolved assemblies. Whilst deaths in custodial establishments in Scotland and Northern Ireland fall outside of the IAP's remit, the IAP felt that parliamentary business from these assemblies on deaths in custody would be of interest to readers.

If you would like further information about a particular entry, please email the Secretariat via the Contact page on the IAP website, or by emailing: iapdeathsincustody@noms.gsi.gov.uk.

House of Lords Motion to Take Note – Prisons: Young People

My Lords, I am pleased to have the opportunity to introduce this debate. I should make it clear that this is not out of any sense of self-promotion, but because I believe that the issues raised by the independent review that I led are so important. Indeed, I believe that they are important for the Government, because as they wrestle with the comprehensive spending review, they need to recognise that prison is a hugely expensive intervention and yet the benefits of this spend are questionable. It has a relatively low impact on crime, and indeed rates of reoffending are high, particularly among young adults. (Citation: HL Deb, 29 October 2015, c1375)

Parliamentary Debate: Psychoactive Substances Bill [HL] Commons Amendments
My Lords, I beg to move that this House agree with the Commons in their Amendment 1.

Noble Lords will recall the debate on Report in this House on 14 July, on the use of psychoactive substances in prisons. The noble Lord, Lord Rosser, then argued that the supply of psychoactive substances in prisons was of such concern that it should be made a statutory aggravating factor under Clause 6 of the Bill. Name of Peer Lord Harris of Haringey (Labour):

House of Lords Debate: Psychoactive substances Bill (HL) - Report

My Lords, I support the amendment of my noble friend Lord Rosser. As some of your Lordships know, I have spent a certain amount of time in the last year or so visiting prisons in respect of the review that I have carried out for the Ministry of Justice on self-inflicted deaths of young people in prison. Psychoactive substances were not a prime element of our report, although the Prisons and Probation Ombudsman's report issued in the last few days highlighted their increasing significance. I was struck by a discussion with the head of healthcare in an establishment who, when I asked about the level of drug use in the prison, said instantly one word, "Rife", to the embarrassment of the deputy governor accompanying us. That goes to the point made by the noble Lord, Lord Blencathra, about the prevalence of drugs in prisons, and the growing proportion of them which are these new psychoactive substances. The reason they are a growing proportion is because of their undetectability and the fact that it becomes more difficult to identify and prevent them. That is why it is important to have an aggravating factor with regard to the supply of these substances in prisons. (Citation: HL Deb, 14 July 2015, c511)

House of Lord Debate: Psychoactive Substances Bill (HL) – Report

..... the debate on these amendments distils down to whether we deal with everything in statute—in other words, we turn the clock back to before the Sentencing Council, before the guidelines, before the coroners’ board and before the 2005 Act—or we take robust action to ensure that the guidelines are updated and reformed to reflect the concerns that have been drawn to our attention, not least by Her Majesty’s Inspectorate of Prisons, as we heard this morning, by the Prisons and Probation Ombudsman, by the Children’s Society and others. Of course, the report of the noble Lord, Lord Harris, on deaths in custody, was published a couple of weeks ago, and I am sure the Justice Secretary is considering it.

All these things have to be taken into account, and I undertook to explore this issue with my right honourable friend Mike Penning, who leads on this policy area and is a Minister not only in the Home Office but in the Ministry of Justice. In the days when the Home Office used to deal with everything to do with prisons, some of these decisions were slightly easier to make; however, in Mike Penning we have someone who is a Minister in both departments. Parliamentary Debate on young adult in police custody

..... I raised concerns about 17 year-olds taken into custody by the police and treated as adults rather than children. I highlighted the case of Joe Lawton, who in 2012 took his own life. His father found him dead with a police charge sheet at his feet. Two days earlier, Joe had been held in a police cell overnight on suspicion of drink-driving. Joe was 17. Written Statement - Deaths in Police Custody

Name of MP: Mrs Theresa May (The Secretary of State for the Home Department)

Written Statement: Independent Review of Deaths and Serious Incidents in Police Custody

I announced on 23 July my intention to commission an Independent Review of Deaths and Serious Incidents in Police Custody

I am pleased to announce to the House that the Review will be led by Dame Elish Angiolini DBE QC.

I said that the Chairman would be someone with the ability to work closely with victims, families and the police alike, and with a proven track record of being willing to ask difficult questions.

Dame Elish has all of these qualities. She was installed as Solicitor General for Scotland on 5 December 2001, and Lord Advocate on 12 October 2006. Since September 2012 she has been Principal of St Hugh's College, Oxford. In June 2015, she concluded an independent review for the Metropolitan Police Service into how they and the Crown Prosecution Service investigate and prosecute rape cases. I am grateful to Dame Elish for agreeing to take on this important work. -HCWS256 (Citation HC Deb, 21 Oct 2015, cWS)

Ministerial Statement: Self-inflicted Deaths in Custody (The Harris Review Report)

We are today publishing the independent review report into self-inflicted deaths of young adults aged 18-24 in National Offender Management Service (NOMS) prison custody. The review, announced to this House on 6 February 2014 by the Coalition Government, was carried out by the Independent Advisory Panel on Deaths in Custody under the leadership of Lord Harris of Haringey.

I wish to thank Lord Harris of Haringey and the Independent Advisory Panel for their work on this important review. Every death in custody is a tragedy. I thank the families of those who have taken their own lives, who gave evidence to this review in order to help avoid this happening to another family. The independent report makes wide-ranging recommendations about the care and management of vulnerable young adults in custody to reduce the risk of future deaths. We will consider these carefully and respond to the report in the Autumn. (HCWS75) (Citation: HC Deb, 1 July 2015, cWS)

Parliamentary Debate on Safety in Custody: Prison

The number of people sentenced to prison for violent offences has increased by 40% in the last 10 years. In addition, the illicit use of new psychoactive substances—lethal highs such as Spice and Black Mamba—has been a significant factor in fuelling violence in prisons. Last year alone, staff responded to nearly 26,000 self-harm incidents, and they frequently prevent deaths through timely intervention. (Citation: HC Deb, 17 June 2015, c102WH)

Debate: Detention under Mental Health Act- As an ethnic minority immigrant to this country, I am intrigued by the way the House works. We have had two days of a deeply serious international debate, and now an ethnic minority immigrant has an opportunity to put a point on a small but important issue that is almost local by comparison. Adjournment Debate: I want to raise an issue of profound importance. It is a practice which I think is intolerable but which carries on every week of the year and probably every day of the year: the shunting of people around the country, sometimes a long distance away from home, at a moment of mental health crisis. Typically, someone at a moment of acute crisis would be taken into hospital but there would be no bed available for them, so they would be taken away somewhere else in the country. There are numerous stories of people being taken hundreds of miles away from home on a regular basis. (Citation: HC Deb, 03 Dec 2015, c591)

Written Ministerial Statement - Police Use of Taser Statistics

Name of MP : Mike Penning (Minister of State for Policing, Criminal Justice and Victims)

Ministerial Statement: Statistics on police use of firearms 2013-14 & Statistics on police use of Taser 2014 in England and Wales

On 23 March 2015, the Home Secretary announced the suspension of the Police Use of Taser and Police Use of Firearms statistical publications due to data quality concerns, which has previously resulted in incorrect data being published and reported to Parliament. Following an internal review of the reporting process, officials, statisticians and the National Armed Policing Secretariat carried out a data validation exercise together with forces to address these concerns. In addition, the Home Office Chief Statistician wrote to forces' commissioners / chief constables asking them to confirm figures for their force. The Home Office Chief Statistician is now satisfied that the figures provided by forces are of sufficient quality to publish. I am today publishing official statistics on police use of firearms in England and Wales for 2013-14 (financial year) and on police use of Taser in England and Wales for 2014 (calendar year). This release also includes revisions to previously published figures and covers all 43 forces in England and Wales. (Citation: HC Deb, 9 July 2015, cWS)
